1. Objectives and Investment Policy

- The Investment Compartment's investment objective is maximization of its total performance from capital increase, income from interest and foreign exchange profits, investing in a diversified portfolio of government and corporate bonds (fixed or/and floating rate) from issuers of emerging markets. Based on the average valuation of assets per calendar quarter, the percentage of Investment Compartment assets invested in deposits, T-Bills and bonds must be within the following ranges:

Bonds and T-bills : from 55% to 90% , Deposits: from 0% – to 45%

- To leverage the portfolio and hedge investment risk, the Investment Compartment may acquire short or long positions in derivative financial instruments. Consequently, the Investment Compartment's performance is expected to be affected by both microeconomic and macroeconomic factors.
- The Investment Compartment's benchmark index is the 3-month Euribor index +100 bps. GMM Global Money Managers Ltd actively manages the Investment Compartment and consequently the composition of its portfolio may deviate from the composition of the benchmark. The benchmark of the Investment Compartment is used only for comparison purposes and for the calculation of the variable performance fee ("performance fee"). The administrator, from whom the above reference index is provided, is registered in the register of article 36 of Regulation (EU) 2016/1011.
- Investors can buy or redeem units in the Investment Compartment on any normal working day in Cyprus. Dividend revenues can either be re-invested or distributed to unitholders in line with a decision of the Manager.
- The impact that portfolio management transaction costs could have on the fund's performance may be substantial because of the strategy this Investment Compartment has adopted. Apart from the fees and expenses specified in section 3 of this document (Fees and expenses), it should be clear that the portfolio transaction costs are paid for from the Investment Compartment's assets.

2. Risk and Reward Profile

- Historical data may not be a reliable indicator about a mutual fund's future risk profile.
- A mutual fund's risk category is no guarantee that risk will remain unchanged. Mutual fund classification may change over time.
- The lowest category does not entail risk-free investment.
- Since the Investment Compartment is in this specific category:
Investments in bonds may entail major fluctuations in prices that can be due to negative developments concerning the issuer or the market, for example. Moreover, those fluctuations frequently level out over the short-term.
- The higher the risk, the longer the investment horizon recommended.

Below is an outline of other risks substantially associated with the Investment Compartment that are not adequately reflected in the risk rating:

Credit Risk: This relates to an issuer's ability to keep its promises. A reduction in the rating of an issue or an issuer could lead to a reduction in the value of bonds in which the Investment Compartment has invested.

Liquidity Risk: This derives from the difficulty in selling assets at a fair price, at the preferred time, due to the potential lack of buyers. This event may put at risk the ability of the mutual fund to liquidate its units after its investors' redemption requests.

Counterparty Risk: The risk associated with a counterparty's ability in a financial transaction to discharge its obligations such as payment, delivery and settlement.

Operational risk: Some markets are less organized compared to most international markets, and consequently liquidating assets and settling transactions on those markets could entail greater risks for the Investment Compartment.

Risk of Inflation: This has to do with a reduction in the Investment Compartment's performance at fixed prices because of a rise in the general consumer price index.

Interest rate risk: Changes in interest rates could impact on the price at which certain financial instruments are traded, such as bonds or derivatives.

Derivatives risk: Using derivatives, either to hedge risk or to effectively manage it, could substantially affect how the portfolio performs.

Emerging Market Securities Risk: Emerging countries may face more political, economic or structural challenges than developed countries. This means that your money is at greater risk.
